Cadet Orientation Flight Program Update

In June, we sent out a memorandum explaining that we needed to delay the revised cadet orientation flight program until after we heard from the FAA concerning the recent reimbursement rules changes voted upon by our NEC. The FAA has given their approval.

We are now ready to send to the field the revised Cadet Orientation Flight Syllabus, along with the revised forms, that reflect this recent change. Your units will receive these publications in August. You are also able to download these revised publications at the national cadet programs web site (click the "Downloads Page" link).

Because of this brief delay, we will begin the revised orientation flight program on 1 October. This should allow plenty of time for our members to receive the publications and to implement the changes.

Until then, please relay to our members that they should continue to fly our cadets under the current program (use the current CAPF 77 syllabus and any version of the CAPF 7), which will be reimbursed at the flat ½ hour rate per cadet or the flat $25 glider rate.

Please disregard the start information for the revised orientation flight program found in the July issue of the CAP News. This issue was written and printed before we had heard back from the FAA. Except as noted above, all other information in the previous article is correct.

Feel free to contact Karen Katchka or Robert Smith if you have any questions. Thank you for your leadership in ensuring a successful cadet orientation flight program! •
